

My career path is carpentry, I chose carpentry because I enjoy the challenges that come along with being in the construction field. You get to learn new things while having fun doing hands on work. Carpentry and construction are very similar because they both involve the process of breaking and building. Ever since I was 12-years-old I've been involved in construction, or any type of building, painting, or even landscaping industry. My uncle has his own business for landscaping and carpentry, I help him a lot and I find it so fascinating that you could really make whatever you want being in the construction field. When I travel to new places I admire the buildings, both tall and short because I know how much worked and time was put into making the structure. I also look at the colors of the building, painting is so challenging but peaceful at the same time and it amazes me how talented people really are. Painting is an art that truly allows you to express yourself, and being able to do that for yourself but for other people as well is amazing to me. I love the fact that the world relies on construction a lot because no one would have homes if it weren't for construction. Knowing that I could change people's life by constructing makes me happy. I believe that I will one day have my own construction business, it's something that I love doing and I could do it for the rest of my life. I have a plan of how I want to start it off but that would require me having the right amount of money for it, I love working hard for what I want and I don't care how long it may take or how much I have to work for it, I will get it one day. The money would help me a lot, it could get me on my feet and ready to start constructing, I just want to be a help to people in need and in general. Everyone has a purpose and I know mine is to be in the construction field. Helping the world and gradually expanding my business worldwide. Construction requires skill and patience, I have a lot of patience when it comes to doing something I love because I always want to make sure I'm doing the best I can at what I do. You're going to make tons of mistakes but that's the fun of it, you get to make mistakes and can fix almost any mistake you made, that's bringing your creative side out. I like using my imagination, now mix that with the skill of being able to construct, it's almost the best feeling in the world that anyone could experience. Most jobs require you to rely on the internet and I believe it is very harmful even though you're doing your job. But in the construction field, you have to think and use what you've learned over the time of being in the work force. Its healthy for you to use your brain instead of pulling your phone out to fix all of your problems, you don't really ever learn anything if you're being spoon-fed a bunch of solutions without really doing anything. I truly believe that being in the construction field is for me and me receiving the money would really help and mean the world to me.
